FOREWORD

Today we commemorate the 89th anniversary of the signing of the Civil Service Act on January 16, 1883.

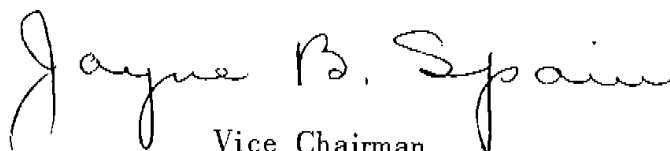

In keeping with tradition, we observe this occasion by honoring those among us who have made especially noteworthy contributions to the success of our programs during the past year. Also, we recognize those newcomers to our esteemed list of employees who have completed more than 25 years of service to the public.

We can be justly proud of these honored associates and the fine example they have set for us to follow. In saluting them, may we find renewed inspiration and rededication to the continuing pursuit of excellence in all that we do.

Our warmest congratulations to today's all-star cast—and our deepest thanks to each of you for your continuing support.

Special Citations

A very significant honor, given on a highly selective basis, it provides a means by which the Commissioners may recognize outstanding professional achievement and valuable contributions to the Commission's programs. The award consists of a citation of official praise, signed by the Commissioners, and an engraved plaque.

Morris S. Berke

*Area Manager, Cleveland Area Office
Chicago Region*

He has set goals and provided leadership for an area office that has achieved and maintains the highest standards of operation. By directing individual attention to the career development of each of his employees he has succeeded in building a versatile, well-trained, fully competent staff. His contributions in the public policy program area have been especially noteworthy—particularly with regard to the employment of the physically handicapped, and taking positive steps to further equal employment opportunity.

Maurice S. "Tex" Brown

*Chief Actuary
Bureau of Retirement, Insurance and
Occupational Health*

His contributions to the retirement program through the use of actuarial science have been consistently outstanding. The energy, time, and effort that he devoted to educating officials of the Commission, the Office of Management and Budget and the General Accounting Office in the principles of retirement costs and financing methods attained fruition in the enactment of Title I of Public Law 91-13, which provided full and permanent financing of the Civil Service Retirement System.

Jack Goldberg

*Chief, Claims Division
Bureau of Retirement, Insurance and
Occupational Health*

He has provided outstanding leadership of the retirement claims program through numerous trying periods of extremely heavy workload. Illustrative of his effectiveness are the high standards of accuracy, the prompt service and the responsiveness to the needs of annuitants that characterize the Claims Division. His extensive knowledge of Civil Service Retirement procedure and laws, combined with an exemplary spirit of service, have made him a most valued source of counsel to the Commission and to other agencies.

Frederick P. Heath, Jr.

*Area Manager, Orlando, Florida
Atlanta Region*

Under his able direction, the Orlando Area Office has earned a reputation for first-class service to the Federal community and the public. He has made imaginative use of sound management techniques in building a highly competent staff of professionals who have particularly distinguished themselves in special program areas, such as employment of veterans, upward mobility, and employment of youth. Much of the success of Commission programs in the State of Florida can be directly attributed to his forceful leadership.

Laverne F. Linnenkamp

Personnel Staffing Specialist Bureau of Recruiting and Examining

He has excelled in effecting difficult placements of individuals possessing few or no job skills. Through perseverance, persuasion and imagination, he has achieved remarkable success in placing disadvantaged candidates in the Washington Metropolitan Area, even in a period of reduced employment opportunities. His sincere interest and concern for upgrading the socio-economic condition of the economically deprived extends far beyond the requirements of his job. Many hours of his off-duty time are devoted to community activities, enhancing his effectiveness as a Concentrated Employment Program Representative.

Joe L. Rubens

*Director, Communications and Office Skills
Training Center
Bureau of Training*

He has developed, expanded, and modernized a training facility that plays a crucial supportive role in the success of many special emphasis programs. Through the use of imaginative techniques and fresh approaches to training, he has achieved significant success in improving the skills and abilities of large numbers of lower level Federal employees. The results of his efforts are being felt in a more effective, better motivated workforce.

Elaine L. Woodruff

Supervisory Librarian

In building the CSC library to the position of Pre-eminence that it now enjoys, she has brought to bear all of the skills of a professional librarian, the leadership and organizational ability of a superior manager, and a strong desire to be of service. Thanks to her diligent efforts, combined with an unusual degree of foresight, the Commission library has grown to the point where it houses the finest collection of literature on personnel management in the world. As a reference and research facility it is an invaluable asset to the success of Commission programs.

SPECIAL CITATION FOR DISTINGUISHED PRIVATE CITIZEN

CHARLES A. PALMER

*Executive Producer
DATAFILMS
Los Angeles, California*

This public-spirited citizen's vision and dedication to the concept of equality of opportunity for all persons are reflected in a motion picture entitled "The Supervisor and Equal Employment Opportunity." Because of his deep personal commitment, he applied his great talent and resources, at considerable financial risk to himself, to the production for the Commission of the film to convey the spirit and practicality of equal employment opportunity to Federal managers and supervisors. This film is now widely used in the Federal Government and has been hailed as a significant contribution to the success of the Government's equal employment opportunity program.

GROUP CITATIONS

ALL EMPLOYEES OF THE BUREAU OF EXECUTIVE MANPOWER

Under the exceptional leadership of Director Seymour Berlin, employees of the Bureau of Executive Manpower have effectively developed, implemented, and operated several critical programs to identify, develop, and place outstanding executives at the highest levels of the Federal service.

Typical of the Bureau's innovative achievements are the development of the Federal Executive Service concept, which is directed toward assuring efficient, top-quality management in the executive ranks; and the formulation in a joint effort with the Office of Management and Budget, of a far-reaching program for Executive Development, aimed at assuring a continuous presence of fully trained and experienced managers at top levels.

SAN JUAN AREA OFFICE NEW YORK REGION

Operating in an unusual and complex employment environment which requires bilingual skills of all office employees, the San Juan Area Office, under Anibal Rolon, has achieved a high level of effectiveness in carrying out Commission programs in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

It has been particularly successful in responding to several critical staffing challenges, while operating below its programmed budget.

The efficiency, hard work, and genuine desire to be of service displayed by the employees of this office have earned them the respect and admiration of the agencies and public they serve.

SAN FRANCISCO REGIONAL TRAINING CENTER SAN FRANCISCO REGION

The employees of this center, under the leadership of Alvin Beller, have achieved an outstanding record of responding imaginatively and flexibly to rapidly increasing demands by Federal, State and local agencies for training in high priority and specialized subject areas.

Despite the rapid growth in number and variety of training courses, this group has been especially successful in improving the quality of the courses offered and in tailoring the courses to meet the specific needs of individual jurisdictions.

Commissioners' Award for Distinguished Service

This is the Commission's highest award. It is given only in the most exceptional cases and only when the Commissioners' personal appreciation cannot be adequately expressed by any other type of award. It consists of an engraved plaque, a citation signed by the Commissioners, and a lapel button for men and a charm or brooch for women.

Gilbert A. Schulkind

Director

Bureau of Personnel Management Evaluation

Under the spark of his strong personal direction, the Commission's evaluation program has responded ably and aggressively to the challenges set forth in the President's memorandum of October 9, 1969, which assigned the Commission significant leadership responsibilities for effective personnel management evaluation on a governmentwide scale.

Mr. Schulkind has set in motion the machinery necessary to accomplish the goals of the President. His efforts to achieve sound agency evaluation systems and to make independent evaluations of agency personnel management effectiveness have had a major impact on the quality of management throughout government. The perceptive assessments made by him and the nationwide personnel management advisor force exert a critical influence on the management of the vast Federal human resource and on the quality of delivery of Federal assistance to our States and cities.
